

Andrew Vecera

Andrew Vecera is the Staff Director for the Subcommittee on Energy and Mineral Resources for the House Committee on Natural Resources. He has worked with the Committee since March 2013, initially serving as counsel to the Committee's oversight operations throughout the 113th Congress. In the 114th Congress he transitioned into a policy role and has focused on a range of issues including energy development on federal lands, the adverse impacts of federal regulations on western states, and the promotion of a federalist approach towards the management of Federal lands.

He obtained his B.A. in political science from Texas Christian University and received his J.D. from the American University, Washington College of Law.
